The Stock Broker would have the sole discretion on setting these limits based on its risk perception of the Client, Margin received from the Client, Market conditions and other factors, but not limited to, limits on account of Exchange/SEBI directions/limits (such as Stock Broker level/Market level limits in security specific/volume specific exposures etc). This would include exposure limits, turnover limits, limits as to the number, value and/or kind of securities in respect of which orders can be placed etc. The Client is aware that the Stock Broker may be unable to inform the Client of such variation, reduction or imposition in advance. The Stock Broker shall not be responsible for such variation, reduction or imposition or the Client's inability to route any order through the Stock Broker's trading system on account of any such variation, reduction or imposition of limits.

The Stock Broker may at any time, at its sole discretion and without prior notice, prohibit or restrict the Client's ability to place orders or trade in securities through us, or it may subject any order placed by the Client to a review before its entry into the trading systems and may refuse to execute/allow execution of orders due to but not limited to the reason of lack of margin/securities or the order being outside the limits set by the Stock Broker/Exchange/SEBI and any other reasons which Stock Broker may deem appropriate in the circumstances. Limits are set to the mark-to-margin limit equivalent to Client's deposit, in case of new terminals. This means that the moment the trading loss reaches an amount equal to Client's limit, the terminal will automatically be disabled. Unless the Client replenishes the margin, the Clients will have no trading limit for the day. That means, no new positions can be created from the terminal. However, setting-off of already created positions would be allowed.

The Stock Broker shall have the prerogative to allow differential buy and sell limits for its clients depending upon credit worthiness, integrity and past conduct of each Client.
